What's New in the CBIRC?

ChatBox-IRC is a very complete and easy to use IRC client. CBIRC allows you to connect to any IRC server, visit channels and perform private messages. Almost all of the features of the most complete IRC client, but without being as heavy, bloated and frustrating as the latter. Basically, it offers all the features that an IRC client needs. Apart from the usual features such as channels, private messages and personal messages, CBIRC also offers: - Online status - Profiles - Auto-login - Add characters that can be used in private messages and channel names - Chat history - Support for ICLAP - Automatic using the correct version of the server protocol based on the version of the client - Features that can be used even if you don't know the command used - Notification of new entries in the channels and new messages by email and instant message - User Management - Broadcast messages when you are on idle - Access to server and user control - Features for Windows Phone 7, Windows 8, Windows 8.1, Windows 10 and Android, iOS and Mac OS X CharacterList is a JavaSE based user interface (UI) for Emulator and Notebook applications. It also includes functions to convert character sets (Cp1250, Cp1253 etc.) to Unicode and back. The User Interface is a pure Swing based GUI. The Character List is customizable on many levels. It is always possible to modify the individual tables. All user interface objects are painted using transparent colors. The character table can also be decorated with background pictures using transparent color sets. The GUI dialogs are always customizable. If the dialogs use Standard Dialog components from Java SE, these components can be combined with any graphic component from SwingFX or JavaFX. The character list makes use of the OpenJDK API provided by Java SE. This makes it possible to use the OpenJDK based Apache Harmony implementation with a different version. CharacterList is fully AJAX based. All controls and dialogs that are used are completely web based. This means that the user needs an Internet connection to use the application. The Character List is completely customizable and extensible. There are many ways to make it look different from the default appearance. The Character List (pronounced charlist) is a Swing based user interface (UI) for Emulator and Notebook applications. It also includes functions to convert character sets (Cp1250, Cp1253 etc)
