Â .[Congenital nephrogenic diabetes insipidus in a neonate]. Congenital nephrogenic diabetes insipidus (CDI) is a rare hereditary disorder that manifests at birth. It is characterized by failure to concentrate and dilute the urine because of the absence of vasopressin (AVP) responsiveness in the kidneys. The disease is caused by defect of the vasopressin-neurophysin II (antidiuretic hormone) (antidiuretic hormone) complex. In some cases there are defects in the hypothalamic peptides or defects of the receptors (AVP-1, AVP-2, oxytocin) for vasopressin. If the patient is treated intensively in the neonatal period with fluid deprivation, decreasing the rate of tubular reabsorption of water, and the development of chronic hypervolemia, he or she can have a good prognosis. We report one case of CDI of unknown etiology in a neonate.

Q: Dynamically Create Multiple Ajax Post Variables The goal I'm trying to dynamically generate a number of posts that will display on the same page. I need to be able to post the data to several different PHP pages that require different parameters. The nature of the websites/categories will remain the same.

The Question What is the best way to dynamically create and POST several Ajax variables? What have I tried As you can see in the code below I am doing this through jQuery. I've tried to search for this question, but I haven't been able to find a good answer or solution. The closest I've found is this question, but I can't figure out how to adapt to my needs. var numberOfCategories = 2;

    var product_group;
$(document).ready(function(){ $.ajax({ url:
"inc/upload/categories.php", method: 'POST',
    data: { slug: $(".slug-selector").val(),
        'book_group': "true",
'additional_product_group': "true", number:
    numberOfCategories }, success:
    function(data){ product_group = data;
$("#product-group-form").show(); }, error:
    function(xhr, textStatus, error
